It's all about funds and grants

Funding is a critical factor as it allows you to carry out your mission. To support your programs and initiatives you may receive funds or grants from various sources including government agencies, foundations, companies, and individual donors. Those can be committed, assigned, allocated, used, reassigned, moved, refunded...

Fund reporting is essential because of the nature of your organisation. You must provide information about your finances and operations, as well as you need to keep your stakeholders informed about your activities and progress. Transparent fund management is required in the best interest of your current and future funders.

Resource planning and time capture and submission is key. In the end, it is people who bring your ideas further.

Any bottlenecks in your fund management?

- Implement automation to streamline fund management and improve compliance. Your team often relies on separate Excel sheets, Word documents, or even different systems to manage your funds. Manual data entry is a waste of time, and a potential source of compliance risk.
- Manage the entire lifecycle of a grant in a Fund Ledger, fully integrated with your GL. No matter if you receive multiple grants for a program with different requirements and deadlines, or if the grants are restricted for a specific action or initiative. Assigning, reassigning, allocating and reallocating grants can become an administrative nightmare in terms of traceability and reporting, and can result in the loss of funding.

How difficult is it to stay compliant?

- Live data reporting in one click. Lacking an integrated system for reporting on grant allocation makes it almost impossible to keep track of your spending and make accurate cost projections. Up-to-date reports provide transparency on the remaining funds allow you to identify overspending, enabling you to reallocate grants.
- Compliance made easy. One of your main administrative challenges is the need to maintain accurate financial records and comply with relevant regulations. It is time-consuming, particularly if your organisation is short-staffed. Easy reporting to simplify the presentation of the necessary documentation for audit purposes. This includes standard reports such as Statement of Financial Statements (SOFA) and Movement of Funds, as well as the option of easily configuring your own reports to meet your specific needs.

Lacking an overview of your resources?

- Straightforward overview of both workload and availability for optimal resource utilisation. Get an insight to make sure that no resources are unutilised and procure high-impact initiatives.
- Secure the resources needed for your projects. Achieve more successful and impactful initiatives by finding the adequate resources for each program.
- Collaborative resource planning with interactive drag & drop functionality. Only ONE resource planning that is correctly updated and reflects your weekly planning. Facilitate easy time reporting by updating timesheets with work assignments. Add to Outlook calendar as part of daily routine.
- Live resource forecast for your actions in a click thanks to being part of your business application.

In need of insights into your initiatives?

- Full access to detailed and trustful data from ONE source. Working with different systems or even with bridging Excel spreadsheets means that your data is spread all over. This makes it very difficult to have an overall view of your projects and initiatives, identify risks, and take corrective measures if needed.
- Multiple on-demand drill-down data visualisation options for better analysis of your grants and overall project performance. Get as many dashboards as you need to get full insights into your non-profit organisation.
